

Facilitating Dynamic Virtual Learning

Learn how to transfer your training and facilitation skills to a virtual environment.

Learn from both sides - have the experience of being a learner yourself in highly interactive webinars, and at the same time engage with content to support you facilitating your own virtual learning.

In a series of three x 4 hour webinars run over consecutive weeks, the following aspects are covered:

- * Human psychological needs
- * Contracting for a robust learning environment
- * Effective communication
- * Understanding learning frameworks and philosophies
- * Working proactively to support healthy group development & process
- * Understanding potential game dynamics and leveraging the opportunity for learning
- * Best practices of using Zoom for lively, real time learning

In each webinar your own questions will shape the process of learning.

Karen Pratt is a Teaching and Supervising Transactional Analyst specialising in education. She has been working virtually with individuals & groups for the past 4 years offering ICF accredited coach training, TA training from beginner to certification level, coaching and supervision. She brings together her deep 20 year immersion in the principles of transformational learning through the frameworks of Transactional Analysis, plus her lived experience of virtual learning, to offer an engaging experience.

Click here: www.tamatters.co.za